

BIG REVIVAL IS TO BE CLOSED ON SUNDAY EVENING

Woman Centenary Worker Delivered Address at Methodist Revival On Thursday Evening.

The whole service at Third Street M. E. church last evening was given over to Mrs. F. I. Johnson of the Centenary Area office at Columbus, Ohio. And a wonderful service it was! Mrs. Johnson is without doubt one of the very best women speakers that has spoken in Maysville. And she had a message worthy of hearing. As a keen observer of world conditions, and as interpreter of these conditions from the view of the Christian church she is truly a wonderful woman. For over an hour she reviewed world conditions and the great task the church has before it. She emphasized most forcefully the fact that there was but one hope for the world—the Christ. As she portrayed the needs of the world and the danger of the church neglecting these needs one could not help but be convinced that she was right. She made an earnest appeal for volunteers for the life service work of the centenary. At the conclusion of her address, by the aid of the stereopticon she showed the pictures of a multitude of young men and women who have gone out within the past year for Christian service as a direct result of the centenary. This, she said was the answer the Methodist church was giving to the world's call for help. She paid splendid tribute to other denominations that were sending out large numbers. While perhaps a few were disappointed in not hearing Rev. Overly but this disappointment was more than overcome by hearing this noted woman.

This evening will be the last week night service of the revival. Rev. Overly will preach. There will be no service on Saturday night, but on Sunday Rev. Overly will give the church a full day. The meetings will close Sunday night.

FEWER BUT BETTER SCHOOLS URGED FOR STATE

State Superintendent Colvin Says Fewer and Larger Institutions in State Would Release Funds And Aid Efficiency.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 17. — Fewer, larger and better schools are needed in Kentucky and county boards of education created under the new school law in Kentucky are being urged by State Superintendent George Colvin to decrease the number of schools and apply funds to make those remaining as highly efficient as possible. It has been a practice in the past, he asserts in a communication to the boards, to multiply schools and divide the revenue, sometimes to secure votes and sometimes to please individuals in the district.

In many of these districts the superintendents says, the population does not justify a school, calling to the attention of the officials the clause in the state law which says that "every school district in the state must contain not fewer than fifty white children of school age."

"It should be the policy of your county board to reduce the number of schools in your county," the superintendent wrote. "We do not need more schools, but fewer, larger and better schools. Sometimes the best way to reduce the number of schools is to consolidate; sometimes, however, consolidation is not practicable and then the better plan would be to assign your children in these small districts to neighboring districts. By reducing the number of schools in your county you will at the same time reduce the number of teacher situations; by reducing the number of teacher positions you will save the money spent on teacher salaries. This money can be used to increase the salaries of remaining teachers and increased salaries will enable you to employ more competent and better qualified teachers."

He expresses the hope that the boards will visit every school and study the needs and that they will favor consolidation wherever that is possible.

"An actual test," he continues, "will demonstrate the fact that a child in the fifth grade in a one-room, one-teacher school is no better prepared than a child in the third grade in a school having four or more teachers, although the child in the fifth grade has two years advantage of the child in the third grade. Wherever consolidation is not feasible, then you should strive to have the one-teacher school standardized."

COOLIDGE IS INVITED TO SIT IN CABINET

President-Elect Expects to Make the Vice Presidency an Office of Consequence.

Marion, Ohio, Dec. 17. — Vice President-elect Coolidge was invited formally yesterday by President-elect Harding to sit in the Cabinet consultations and take an active part in shaping the policies of the coming administration.

The invitation was extended at a conference here at which Mr. Harding's suggestion the two talked over in detail the question of Cabinet appointments and planned for an association of nations and many other problems involved in the assumption of executive authority on next March 4.

Governor Coolidge indicated that he would accept gladly such responsibilities as his chief might suggest, and after the conference both expressed warmest gratification over the results of their talk. The Vice President-elect declared that he was particularly pleased with the progress made in the association of nations conferences here and predicted that Mr. Harding would work out an agreement behind which the American people could stand united.

It was not revealed what position Mr. Coolidge took toward preservation of the framework of the Versailles league in the building of a new world peace structure, nor what new suggestions he contributed to the advice gathered by the President-elect in his series of conferences.

MAYSVILLE MAN FINANCIAL DIRECTOR OF EDUCATION DRIVE

Mr. W. W. Ball Will Have Charge of Finances in Southern Methodist Education Movement.

Nashville, Tenn., December 17. — District group meetings of the Christian Education Movement of the Louisville Conference Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will be held as follows throughout the bounds of the conference: Louisville, December 20; Bowling Green, December 29; Princeton, January 4; Henderson, January 5; Owensboro, January 6; Shepardsville, January 7; Columbia, January 12th.

Rev. Leonidas Robinson, Conference Secretary of Education, will be present at each of these conferences and Bishop Collins Denny has been invited to attend.

Mr. W. W. Ball, a leading banker of Maysville, Kentucky, and a prominent layman in the Kentucky Conference, has accepted the appointment as Conference Financial Director in the Christian Education Movement. Rev. O. B. Crockett at the last session of the Kentucky Conference was appointed Educational Secretary for that organization.

The schools in Kentucky which are to be benefited by plans now under way are, Kentucky-Wesleyan College, Winchester, Ky.; Logan College, Russellville, Ky.; John Locke College, Elkton, Ky.; John C. C. Mayo College, Paintsville, Ky.; Lindsay-Wilson Training School, Columbia, Ky.; Marvin University School, Clinton, Ky.

The Southern Methodist church has entered upon a movement not only to strengthen these schools in Kentucky, but also its two universities, thirty colleges, 22 junior colleges, 26 academies, 8 missionary school, a total of 88 institutions. Besides strengthening these schools, leaders in the movement are confident that at least 5,000 young men and women will pledge themselves to devote their lives to the ministry, to missions, or to some other form of Christian service and to seek a Christian education as a preparation for effective life service.

DR. WINNES RESIGNS AS STATE VETERINARIAN

Accused Veterinarian Resigns Protesting His Innocence of Murdering Miss Lura Parsons.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 17. — "Until final disposition is made of the investigation of the death of Miss Lura Parsons now being made at Harlan, my sincere interest in the work of the Live Stock Sanitary Board prompts me to tender my resignation as assistant state veterinarian," said Dr. W. C. Winnes in a communication to the board Thursday.

"While in the discharge of my duty," Dr. Winnes said, "I fell a victim to a most unfortunate circumstance. God knows I am innocent of this charge and a blot has been made on my good name and my loved ones at home have endured untold sufferings. I desire to thank each member of your honorable board and my many friends for the confidence placed in me especially through this strenuous ordeal of persecution. I feel confident that in due time the cloud of suspicion cast about me will be dispelled and I will be fully exonerated."

Dr. Winnes' resignation was accepted, but no successor was appointed as he will probably resume his duties with the board when the investigation being made at Harlan has been completed. He expects to spend most of his time in Harlan assisting in the investigation.

MANY WILL SEE OLD SANTA CLAUS HERE ON NEXT FRIDAY

Committee of Business Men Receive Names and Addresses of Many Poor Kiddies—Names Should Now Be Sent Business Men.

More children will probably shake Santa Claus' hand and receive candy and toys from his pack at the Business Men's party to be given next Friday afternoon at the court house than have ever before taken part in this big annual event.

The names of many poor kiddies who would not likely have a visit from Santa unless these business men made the arrangements, are coming in rapidly to the managing committee who are acting for the big hearted merchants who have gone down into their pockets to pay Santa's expenses at this big party.

Details of the party are being worked out by the committee which is being helped by a committee of local women. They are anxious that no poor child shall be left out of this party. The purpose of the party is that there shall not be a child in Maysville or vicinity who will awaken on Christmas morning to find an empty stocking. The City Mission and other charitable organizations are looking after the needs of the older citizens but the business men want to see the kids have their toys and candies just like they had them when they were little boys with big eyes and light hearts on Christmas morning.

Every citizen who knows of a poor child in their community who should attend this party is asked to write the name and address on the slip of paper and turn it over to any member of the committee. These names may be left at the E. A. Robinson & Company cigar store or at any of the newspaper offices and they will be placed in the proper hands. Do it now or some child's little heart may be sad on Christmas.

OUR POLIOY

To support such measures as are unquestionably for the good of Mason County as an entire community, rather than such propositions as are in favor of the individual interest, or of one section as against another. And likewise to earnestly and consistently oppose all things that are not for the good of the County as a whole.

TARIFF CLINIC SOON.

The Ways and Means Committee of the U. S. House of Representatives is to be commended for planning an early consideration of the tariff question. No definite action can be taken until the special session has been convened in the spring, but action will be hastened by hearings which are to be held, beginning in January, on the various schedules of tariff legislation under Republican principles. The purpose is to impose import duties which shall represent at least the difference in cost of production in the United States and in foreign competing countries. There is no purpose to impose a prohibitive import duty except possibly in some particular industry which is vitally important for the welfare of the country and which experience has shown is endangered by "dumping" practices followed by our foreign rivals.

The measure of protection needed by any industry is a question of fact which must be determined by taking the testimony of men in a position to speak with authority. Undoubtedly the Tariff Commission has gathered some facts which will be of value. These facts can not be accepted, however, without opportunity for presentation of other facts within the knowledge of American citizens who would be affected by tariff legislation.

The immense quantities of Canadian wheat which have been shipped into the United States in recent months, the importations of butter from Denmark, and of hides and meat from Argentina, wool from Australia, vegetable oils from the Orient, and cotton manufactured goods from Great Britain, are all indications of the keen competition practically all American industries must meet within the next few years. America has no desire to close her doors against foreign importations. The nation does desire, however, to impose such an import tax as will equalize conditions for the American producer, so that American labor shall not be compelled to compete at a disadvantage with the cheap labor of other countries.

It will be well if business men—producers and consumers—follow closely the reports of the hearings before the Ways and Means Committee next month. A tariff bill is to be framed in the interest of the whole country in behalf of all classes of producers and not in behalf of any one section or class. Free discussion of the subject and communication with Members of Congress by men who have information concerning costs of production and the extent and effect of foreign competition will be of assistance to Members of the Senate and House of Representatives.

HAPPY AMERICA.

The front page of every American newspaper gives daily evidence of America's happy estate. All the grave news originates in Europe. America's own contributions to the news of the world differ little from what they were before the war. Sports, accidents, elopements, divorces, beauty contests and the like fill the American news columns.

But, in Europe, most of the news is about the increasing difficult efforts of victors and vanquished alike to recover their strength. Happy America! Yet, but in danger, too. For Europe's present turmoil and despair point to another war as a blind gamble with fate. America, too far away to feel the fears of Europe is slipping into unconsciousness of what is going on across the Atlantic.

Another war inevitably would involve the United States, just as the last one did. The question of neutral rights, by which America could swing the conflict any way it chose, would carry Uncle Sam into the fight to defend his rights against one side or the other.

It is to America's advantage, therefore, to guard against a second conflict. Whatever the points at issue in Europe, America's own self-interest requires that they be settled peacefully. Hence, America must keep watch. To return to the isolation of the years before the war will be fatal. To leave Europe to itself will be to drive Europe to war. America must prevent that in self-defense. Happy America may cause a world catastrophe, if America's desire for happiness leads to forgetfulness of the world and its terrible problems, which are still unsolved.

REPUBLICANS HANDLED THEM.

In his message to Congress President Wilson asserted that, "The nations finances have shown marked improvement during the past year." It will be remembered that the Republican Congress, which will come to a close on March 4, has cut two and a half billion dollars out of the demands of the Democratic Administration for Federal appropriations. A million of this reduction was made during the past year. If the Republicans had granted all the appropriations the Wilson Administration asked for, the increase of a billion dollars in expenditures would have left the finances of the nation much worse off. While President Wilson did not give credit to the Republicans for this accomplishment, the voters did when the went to the polls on November 2 and cast their ballots for men whom they desired to conduct the affairs of the Government for the next four years.

In this same connection it is well to remark that the Administration has asked for appropriations for the coming year greater than the costs of the Government for the past year by something like a billion dollars. Unless the Republicans are able to cut that demand for appropriations the finances of the Government will show a worse condition a year hence.

ALL SET.

Mutual congratulations among Republican Senators and Representatives returning to Washington are combined with a determination to deserve the mandate for good government given to them by the people on November 2nd.

BARTER AND SALE THE FARMER'S WAY OUT.

Consulting the master minds of the country the President-elect is acquiring and accumulating wisdom. Incidentally, no doubt, he is developing understanding without which the others are of little practical value. Largely these accretions are being held seared in the archives of Marion. Sometimes the suggestion of some suggestion made becomes fugitive for popular deletion. Mr. Hoover has been in conference with Mr. Harding and whatever else he may have given of things new and old from the storehouse of his world-wide experience he acknowledges to one bit of advice that is practical and sound.

In Mr. Hoover's judgment stimulated purchase is far superior to paternalism in conservation of production and distribution, and in salvage for the producer. The application in point is to the plight of the farmer. The principle is as sane in application to all productive agencies. The panacea in relief for the farm, and all other congested sources of output, is through the open market place, not the halls of Congress.

SENATE WILL DO THE CONSIDERING.

Secretary Tumulty says he has been offered an appointment by the President to the chief justiceship of the Court of Customs Appeals. The position carried an annual salary of $10,000 and is for life. "I have this matter now under consideration," complacently remarks Mr. Tumulty. Unfortunately for his peace of mind the appointment, if made, would have to be confirmed by the Senate, and it is not at all likely that consent would be given for such a flagrant use of a judicial vacancy to provide a place for a political lame duck.

DENMARK DONE OUT.

It is reported from Geneva that Denmark has accepted a mandate for Armenia, but that British soldiers will be used to keep peace in that unhappy country. It is not indicated, however, whether the Danish governor, the commanding officer of the British troops, or a representative of the league of nations' commission on mandates will be clothed with authority. There is a potential clash of interests that will contribute to the final dissolution of the league.

AS BAKER SEES IT.

"We must live in the world as it is," Secretary Baker reminds us, "while we struggle to make it what it should be." He is a true internationalist to the last, but he could have better expressed the sentiments of the American people had he said, "We are glad to live in the United States as it is, while we struggle against any encroachments upon our liberties."

St. Louis Times — The simple sincerity of Warren Harding will draw to him millions who did not vote for him because they did not know him.

An Appeal

To the Republicans of the Country and
All Those Who Aided Them:

The Republican success in the 1920 election has been commensurate with the quality of our candidates and the righteousness of our cause.

This success is the partnership accomplishment of all Republicans everywhere and of hundreds of thousands of well-wishers of good government regardless of past party affiliations.

To all of these we now appeal, because it is the mutual responsibility of us all who will share alike in the consequent mutual benefit of good government.

The plan of limiting campaign contributions to $1,000, adopted by your national organization, has left your party unmortgaged.

It has been a most advanced step in placing the business of politics on the highest plane, and has brought an interest on the part of thousands who never before have been concerned with politics.

Some weeks before election it was apparent that the expenses provided for in our budget, with the strictest economy, would exceed the contributions, but we were unwilling either to leave undone any legitimate effort essential to complete success or to change the method of raising money. We were then sure and we are now sure that every Republican desires that the expenses of the campaign be distributed in this manner.

Your presidential campaign this year cost no more than that of 1916, when a dollar went nearly twice as far as it does today.

Four years ago the bulk of the campaign fund came from 750 contributors, while this year the approximately $2,000,000 contributed to date for the presidential election has come from 50,000 givers.

The victory won, the raising of the deficit would be easy, indeed, if your committee were willing to abandon the policy of keeping down the average of contribution. This we are determined not to do. It was a fight of all the people. The result speaks for itself. It lifted a burden from the minds of millions and points the way to better and happier days. We ask now for that additional help from all which is merited both by the successful conclusion of the effort and by the consequent contribution to the welfare of all of our people and the glory of the nation.

Let us now have help from every American who is grateful for the victory and all that it means to the country. It might well be in the nature of a thanksgiving offering for the return to a certain safe, sane, constitutional progressive government.

Let us by general and generous giving put the seal of approval upon the policy of putting a national administration in power free from any possible embarrassment of special obligation to any man, men or group of men. Let us make the contribution, whether large or small, and whether or not we have heretofore given, commensurate with our means and our appreciation, always within the maximum limit heretofore fixed.

Let us get our names on the cornerstone of a sturdier political structure, upon the roll of those who have helped make possible a campaign of which, in methods and result, we may as Republicans and patriots be justly proud.

Most earnestly we urge that this aid be given quickly, that your committee may be enabled to discharge the party's obligations and turn to further constructive work in behalf of party and country.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE,
Will H. Hays, Chairman.

GOOD WORD FOR "DAD" ZERFOSS.

L. F. ("Dad") Zerfoss, of Lexington, who often visits Maysville and has many friends here, is the subject of a sketch in the Louisville Post of Wednesday, when he was in the Falls City to attend a December Y. M. C. A. staff meeting. He has been a "Y" booster for thirty years, says the Post, and also: "Not only in years does 'Dad' outrank every other staff secretary, but he comes pretty close to outstripping them in several phases of service, for he is recognized everywhere as a 'wonderful scout' in the Y. M. C. A. activities." It continues: "One of the outstanding features of Mr. Zerfoss' work is his success in training boys for athletic games. He believes that one of the greatest factors for good in a boy's development is an abundance of wholesome and invigorating exercise in play and games."

Progress and Efficiency

We are anxious for the business and accounts of all, but we do not want you to think of us simply as a place to deposit your money. It is our aim to give to our customers the most correct, helpful, prompt, progressive, efficient and up-to-date service possible.

The leading Banks of the country have adopted the plan of supplying their customers with statements and this new plan seems to be working much more satisfactorily than the old system. Under the old system, a customer must leave his book to be balanced, which requires time and makes it impossible to immediately re-deliver it to them. Under the new system there will be waiting until tomorrow or next week before getting a full statement of your account. It, together with all your cancelled checks, will be ready for you any time you call. This means an additional convenience and saving of time to you.

We will continue to issue pass books to all depositors and keep the accounts of those who wish same in the old way, our sole object being to serve our customers to their best interests and in the way they wish us to.

New York Letter

By Lucy Jeanne Price

New York. — We are certainly becoming an industrious nation! One week a potential young millionaire refuses the millions and sticks at a job. And the next, Mrs. C. DeL. Oelrichs declares that she, too, loves work and is ceasing to be a social butterfly and become a perfume dealing bee, instead. Literally, that's it! Mrs. Oelrichs is distributing her business cards bearing the name of a trading company, and her own name, as "in charge of the retail department." The fact that her chauffeur never keeps her waiting at the end of office hours make her life more easy than those of her working companions, but it doesn't make it one whit less earnest.

A promoter must above everything else be an optimist, of course. That's his stock in trade. Which may or may not have anything to do with Lawrence A. Schaeffer having taken unto himself one dozen wives! He is locked up on a charge of bigamy but his wives already located say that's a gross understatement. Schaeffer has been a promoter of chain stores, moving pictures, and, according to his own own claim, political campaigns. His wife-recruiting method consisted largely of advertising for girls to act in his picture company. Then he learned from the most encouraging looking ones who applied for the job if they had any money. If they had, their chance of becoming an actress was supplanted with the chance to become a wife of the company president.

There is a self-consciousness about the girl whose hair has just been bobbed which speaks for itself wherever you see her. One such young woman was almost walling on the bus the other day. "I'm afraid to go home," she confided to her companion. "Jim so admired the girls at the beach last summer with bobbed hair, and I wanted to surprise him. My hat comes over my nose, and my hair isn't curly one bit. There's was; I thought mine would be. Isn't it a-w-u-l?" Her friend was not as encouraging as she might have been. "What a chance to take with a husband!" she mused.

Are New York spring water companies facetious, or was this written in all the seriousness which it seeks to carry with it? "To our patrons! The prohibition act has created a demand for bottles. We find it necessary, beginning December 1, 1920, to make a charge of $1.50 for every five gallon demijohn or six-bottle case not returned."

It's absurd to be taken away from "life" to go to the schoolroom, declared protesting groups of girls who were taken to the Magistrates' Court the other day to explain why they were not at their books. The law requires all minors who have not finished high school to attend continuation classes at least four hours a week. Enforcement of the law was started in earnest and 75 girls were fathered in from shops, offices, choruses, carabets, all sorts of highways and byways to be told the story of the work that was ahead of them. To add to their indignation, the magistrate got irritated and told a lot of them to wash all the adornment off their faces.

Another St. John Ervine play is opening this week. The selection of the people who were enthusiastic over "Jane Clegg" and "John Ferguson" are delighted. "Mixed Marriage" is the title of the new production and it is to be put on at the Bramhall Theater, which has been the home of many unusual plays. St. John Ervine became almost the center of a cult last season and his admirers are in a mood to be pleased, almost regardless of whether he holds to his past standard or not.

A new record has been established in the office of the Health Department. A tenant has written in to beg somebody to make her landlord turn off the heat in an apartment building. It's the first complaint of the kind ever received there, says Health Commissioner Copeland.

It will be difficult to cut off immigration while this spirit rules: Orlando Sigliano, 18 years old, of Naples, Italy, came over as a stowaway. He was found when the steamer was two days out and after a lecture by the captain was told he would have to return to Italy. While still a considerable distance from shore he gathered together his bandano of belongings and jumped overboard. He got safely out of the Hudson River in the boundaries of Manhattan. But they found him. And now he's weeping over the prospect of leaving.

VOGEL'S MINSTRELS WILL BE SOME THING DIFFERENT.

John Vogel Promises His Many Followers in This Section An Entertainment Different.

Novelty abound in John W. Vogel's Black and White Revue coming here on Christmas evening. "There is no reason," said John W. Vogel, proprietor of John W. Vogel's Black and White Revue, in a recent interview, "why there should be such a sameness as is usually found in minstrel shows. This form of entertainment offers exceptional opportunities for the presentation of new and novel features, and that is what the public demands. Theatergoers insist upon having novelty, something they have not seen before, a fact I have always considered in organizing my enterprises, which, perhaps, is largely responsible for my unparalleled success."

"This year I can assure those who go to see the Black and White Revue that they will find something really new and novel, instead of the usual minstrel program. My idea is made up of turns that are not alone new to this form of entertainment, but many of them new to this country, for they have originated and been seen only in foreign lands. My vocalists are using only the newest and most meritorious songs and they have the support of the finest band and orchestra that the country affords. The comedians, among whom are the great Morton, monologist, Dan Rice, Happy Jim Bonham, and a score of others, have appeared in the best theaters of America and are entertainers of the highest order."

One of the feature acts is that of Lester LaMonte, clever female impersonator, who has no superior in his line, with the possible exception of Julian Eltinge.

"My company comes to the Washington Opera House on Christmas evening," Mr. Vogel concluded, "and at the conclusion of the performance I think you will agree with me that my offering is a satisfying innovation, a welcome change from the cut and dried form of minstrelsy so often offered, and that it has a long, pleasure-giving life before it."

UNCLE TED'S BED-TIME STORIES.

Busy Days For President-Elect Harding.

"What is Senator Harding doing these days?" asked Ruth as she and her brother Jack were walking along with Uncle Ted.

"These are mighty busy days for our next President," was Uncle Ted's reply. "You see he has only been back home for a short time after his vacation in Texas and Panama and his trip to Washington for the opening session of Congress. His two day stay in the National Capital was a mighty busy time for him, as he not only attended the opening session of the Senate, where he made a mighty fine speech, but he was busy every minute talking to the various big Senators and other men who will help him run this country on a businesslike basis for the next four years at least."

"And I want to tell you kiddies, the newspaper men in Washington are mighty fond of Senator Harding, and that means a whole lot. He talks to them just as one of them, for, as I have told you before, he is a newspaper man himself. While waiting at the Capitol in Washington on Monday, December 6, he talked to them and told many funny things about his experiences when he was struggling with his paper in Marion, Ohio, long before he even thought of being a Senator, and certainly long before he ever dreamed of being President."

"Whom did he talk to at the Capitol?" asked Jack.

"He talked with all the Republican leaders in the Senate, Speaker Gillette of the House of Representatives called, too, as did the British Ambassador, Sir Auckland Geddes. In fact there was a steady stream of callers congratulating the next President and conferring with him regarding important matters."

"Can you tell us about what he said in his speech at the Senate?" asked Ruth.

"Well, certainly by this time you have read his speech. The only thing I can do is explain what his speech meant to me and what it should mean to all of us. In the first place we must remember that this is the first time that a United States Senator has been elected President, which is not only what might be called an unusual happening but one which is a step forward and in the right direction. All of us have seen what a man can do in the Presidential chair who has not had the training in the big law-making body of the country and who, because of that and a stubborn will, refused that cooperation with Congress so vitally necessary if the best is to be accomplished for the country as a whole. In his speech in the Senate, Orleans."

President-Elect Harding showed his great respect for that body in which he has been such a hard worker.

"Won't he be a better President because he has been a Senator?" asked Jack.

"Exactly, Jack. In all those things which keep the wheels of our Government moving, the President and Congress must be the last ones to decide. If they do not work together the country must suffer. If they do work together and consult each other, then the country will receive the best from both. Because the next President has been in the Senate he understands the ways in which the Senate must work and naturally when he sits in the Presidential chair he will be equipped in the best possible way to bring about peace and harmony and complete understanding."

"Now, another thing, kiddies. So long as Senator Harding has been in the United States Senate he has always insisted that the rights of the Senate should be recognized. He still thinks so, but in his speech he also showed that he is going to insist that the rights of the President also be kept in mind at all times. With such a view of the situation we should have one of the best Presidents the country has ever known. And if any of the enemies of Republicanism think they can continue to talk of the 'Senate oligarchy,' of which Gov. Cox talked so much during the campaign, they are going to be disappointed, because Senator Harding will not let the next administration be controlled by the Senate. He wants the Senate to help him as he will help the Senate, but he does not want the Senate to control the White House any more than he will try to control the Senate."

"Did Senator Harding talk with President Wilson while he was in Washington?" asked Ruth.

"No, Ruth, he did not, but it was not our next President's fault. Just before he reached Washington the newspaper men were told by the White House that the President would be glad to see the next President. Naturally Senator Harding saw this in the papers but he did not receive a direct invitation from the President. He didn't ignore the matter, but went more than half way and left his card at the White House on his way to the station to take the train for home. A conference between the two men would have been interesting but we could hardly expect the President to invite Mr. Harding to see him when he didn't even send him the slightest message of congratulations when he was elected by the largest vote ever cast for President."

SAD DEATH.

Two weeks ago we mentioned W. W. Jones being called to Dana, Ind., by the accidental death of Frank Randolph, a relative, but at that time had no particulars. Since Mr. Jones' return we learn that the young man was on his way to High School on horseback, and when near the school his horse slipped and fell with young Randolph under him, crushing him so badly that death ensued within two hours. He was a young man highly esteemed in the community. — Flemingsburg Times-Democrat.

GARRETT WANTS BIG SUM FOR KENTUCKY ROADS.

Washington, Dec. 16. — H. Green Garrett, Winchester, delegate to the convention of the American Association of State Highway Officials, has been selected as one of five members of a legislative committee to recommend and urge the continuance of Federal aid when the present funds are exhausted.

Mr. Garrett said the committee would probably ask for an appropriation of $100,000,000, to be available for use during and after the fiscal year 1922. Kentucky's quota would be about $6,000,000, according to Mr. Garrett's statement.

THE GASOLINE FOX TROT.

The Vanceburg Sun Says "One morning last week Chas. Bate of Mouth of Laurel, who is taking the gasoline treatment for rheumatism, kicked over a quart bottle of gasoline on the hearth of an old-time fire place. The fluid at once ignited and if it hadn't been for the large chimney drawing the flames, no doubt the house would have been destroyed. As it was Mr. Bate had one foot to get wet with the liquid when it upset and it caught fire and for a time it is said he forgot about his physical ailments and staged a war dance. Luckily he wasn't seriously injured. Gasoline is dangerous and should be handled with extreme care."

TAX ON PROFITS.

Washington, Dec. 17. — Congressman J. W. Fordney, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, is expected to advocate a corporation tax of 15 per cent on profits with no modifications or exceptions.

Arguments are being presented to members of the committee in support of the idea that if a retail sales tax is to be levied, it take the form of monthly payments by a firm on its total volume of sales.

The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce is sending out a tax questionnaire. Its purpose is to lay the foundation for apportion to any further increases of taxation on the automobile industry. The argument is made that the industry cannot support heavier burdens.
